STI Project – Power Point Presentation

You will complete a Power Point-style presentation for this project. You may use Power Point, Canva, Google slides, Prezi, or some other comparable software.

For this assignment, you will complete a slideshow presentation, complete with your narrations, which includes pertinent information for your project. This should include facts, statistics, pictures, charts/graphs, etc. Be creative! You should include your name, course number and section, as well as any citations on one of the slides (preferably first or last). Citations for charts/graphs, pictures, etc. should be included under the image.

The presentation should be between 5-10 minutes long. There will be no points deducted for time as long as the required information is included and the presentation time is between 4.5-12 minutes in length. Your narration should add to the presentation – you may read the information on each slide, but please elaborate on that information. Give additional facts or examples. Do not simply read the information on the slides. And, be confident in the information you are sharing. (Practice saying the names of the STIs, medications, etc. Feel free to use notes while you are recording.)

Your project will need to cover HIV/AIDS + 3 other STIs of your choice. Include information such as, but not limited to transmission (including behaviors that may increase/decrease risk), symptoms, diagnosis, treatment, prevention, long-term consequences, psychological effects, etc.

Your primary source will be your textbook, but please use additional resources as needed. Be sure to include proper APA citations for any sources used (including pictures & charts/graphs that you did not create on your own). The proper citation for your textbook is:

Hyde, J. S., & DeLamater, J. D. (2020). Understanding human sexuality. New York, NY: McGraw-Hill Education.
