

Final Report Instructions

For the final report, expand on a topic discussed during the semester.

Report Content:

Framework: choose a perspective in which you will frame your writing such as historical, critical, philosophical, or descriptive. You can also compare and contrast two topics.

In the abstract/introduction, specify your approach.

Report Structure:

Number of pages: Min. 5/Max 10

Double-spaced, 12 pt. Times Roman or similar typeface that is readable and takes the same amount of space.

Citation style: You may select the style you are most comfortable with, and be consistent.

Sources: Min. five (5) with at least two (2) being outside of the materials provided.

Does not require a title page, but use running header and/or footer with: ESOC 330, report title, your name, date and page numbers.

Submission deadline: July 9, 11:59 pm. Upload to D2L Final Report assignment folder. (Will leave folder open until Friday, July 11, 11:59pm.)

Following are additional materials that may help you develop the subject of your final report (let me know if you need help coming up with a subject):

1) Why it is important to understand what corporations are collecting about users.

IRL Online, "... the laws that govern real life don't apply online. This hour, TED speakers explore rules to navigate this vast virtual space.

<https://www.npr.org/2020/03/19/818293048/irl-online>

2) History of journalism and misinformation in US

<https://www.npr.org/2018/06/25/623235037/fake-news-an-origin-story>

3) Europe's cyberlaw efforts: What you should know about France's new online hate speech bill.

<https://www.thelocal.fr/20190701/what-does-frances-proposed-new-hate-speech-law-mean-for-social-media>

4) Companies start implanting microchips into workers' bodies

<https://www.latimes.com/business/technology/la-fi-tn-microchip-employees-20170403-story.html>

5) Our AI Future – Sexbots, Toilet Drones, and Robocops?

<https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/the-cyberlaw-podcast/id836535581?l=es&i=1000475099409>