Dear Sir/Madam,

After extensive research on different universities where I could prefer taking my studies, New York University was my final choice and my best-preferred university. I want to study business and pursue a real estate career after attaining a GPA of 3.7 points. New York University is the best in offering business and real estate programs. It has an outstanding reputation, and excellent reviews characterize it. Majoring in business studies and real estate is my long-term goal of achieving my career choice. New York University is with no doubt my best choice. Among other things, the university is a center for talent development. Since I have been an athlete and I play girls' high basketball for the past four years since the time I was in grade 8, I feel New York University is the best place to develop my talent and represent the university in different activities.

My consideration to New York University is based on the fact that it is a place of innovation under business and real estate development. Securing an opportunity in the institution will enable me to acquire international standards in exploring different skills and experiences. My previous school's emphasis concerning business studies has significantly contributed to developing an atmosphere that has encouraged me to venture into various business ideas learned in the classroom.

I am much anticipating, to take a chance and make a step-in development of my future. Joining the university will help me become more diversified. I am deeply convinced by various business speculations and real estate projects. Ideally, access to these factors will equip me with the skills needed to work as a commercial or residential surveyor. Thus, these are significant career opportunities that I will explore after my studies.

Becoming a New York University student will make me proud, extending my interest in exploring different business and real estate strategies through different ethnicities. I cannot think of another university that can efficiently nature my development in business studies and real estate to become a qualified business person other than New York University. As an aspiring residential surveyor, I look forward to venturing to different estates in New York City and provide full competence in the estate to return what I have learned to the society.

Sincerely,
