

ACTIVE LEARNING TEMPLATE: Basic Concept

STUDENT NAME _____

CONCEPT _____ REVIEW MODULE CHAPTER _____

Related Content

(E.G., DELEGATION,
LEVELS OF PREVENTION, ADVANCE DIRECTIVES)

Nurses have a role to play consistently in supporting the patients well-being. this is very important in enhancing the patient's healing process. Nursing advocates work as stewards of the nursing profession which involves being with, Knowing, enabling and maintaining the belief that the nursing profession provides the best care that the patient needs.

Nursing tries hard to implement the best and valuable skills to advance the awareness, empathy and understanding others. this provides a good environment for patients in order for the them to feel safer and better in the care provided.

Underlying Principles

1. Beneficence

This is described as the moral obligation to do well and become responsible to ensure that clients are supported in the best way possible to positively affect their health. clients ought to receive the best care to achieve optimal results.

2. Non-maleficence

This simply means do no harm e.g. injury to patients or any other suspected abuse.

3. Autonomy

This is self determination or independence and the ability to self-direct. It is therefore the duty of all nurses to respect the wishes of their clients.

Nursing Interventions

WHO? WHEN? WHY? HOW?

Nurses have a duty to ensure that their decisions and actions influence positively the health of patients and the overall execution of their duties in the profession. The nurse should be there for the patient and speak on their behalf if they are unable to speak or unwilling to.

Nurses have the responsibility to advocate for medical issues since the patient is not able to. This situation needs a experiences or skillful nurse whom will benefit the patient and improve their health condition.

Advocating is all about negotiating and this is what nurses need to pursue with other work colleagues organizations, family and arrive at the most effective way to help the patient.