The American Dream and Promise Act

Thesis statement: Passing of the American Dream and Promise Act (HR 6) is one of the most notable acts that the United States House of Representatives have passed in 2019. This has created a path to millions of immigrants who want to acquire American citizenship. However, the House of Representatives may not realize that the act brings more harm than good to the country due to the negative impact of the same.

Question 1

The thesis statement tells my reader about the need to look at the benefits and the consequences of passing the ⁵American Dream and Promise Act. Although it is a good thing to pass the act to enable millions of immigrants to acquire American citizenship, it is crucial on the other side to understand the effects of the same to the United States. There are severe consequences that will result in the passing of the act and only hoping that the House of Representatives considered the same. However, from my point of view, I think the consequences of the act were not given much attention thus leading to the passing of the act. On the contrary, it is important to note that the country may enjoy important benefits from enabling the immigrants get American citizenship. However, I believe that there should be a weigh between the merits and demerits of the act and coming up with measures of how the demerits of the act can be mitigated. Failure to mitigate the consequences can end up haunting the United States economically, socially and spiritually as this permits people of different cultural, economic and religious backgrounds to become United States citizens. Therefore, going through the thesis statement will enable the reader to get my point of reasoning of believing that the House of Representatives considered the merits and demerits ³of the passing the American Dream and Promise Act and realized that the merits of the same overlap the demerits. As a result, this will help to secure the United States economically, socially and spiritually.

Question 2

The thesis statement provides a road map to where my paper is heading in terms of placing much consideration on the need to have passed the American Dream and Promise Act. It enables the reader to familiarize themselves with the merits and demerits of passing the American Dream and Promise Act. Having understood the merits and demerits of the passing of the act a person with sound mind will be able to understand whether the House of Representatives passed informed decisions or was influenced by other external factors. Taking into note that this is a crucial aspect during the lives of many Americans, discussing the consequences of the act will shed more light on what the American Dream and Promise Act entails and the measures that can be put into place to ensure that the demerits of the act do not hurt the American dream. Again, the thesis will clear any form of misunderstanding or confusion towards what the act entails and what it means to the Native Americans. Having known what it means to the native Americans will help individuals of sound mind to think of whether indeed it was necessary to pass the American Dream and Promise Act or not. Besides, the reader will make an effort to research the process that was followed by the house of representatives to reach the agreement that they need to pass the American Dream and Promise Act and whether they failed at some point or not.

Question 3

Unfortunately, the thesis can be disputed on the ground that passing of the American Dream and Promise Act is of importance to the United States. One of the pros of the thesis is that it helps the Americans of sound mind to ponder on whether indeed there was need to pass the act or not. This will be helpful in either challenging the act or supporting it with all their might. Once the citizens have understood the need for ³the American Dream and Promise Act in our midst it will help to clear the mist already in place and fuel the critics in fully supporting the act. On the other hand, there exists a gap to challenge the thesis statement as it has not taken into consideration the process that was followed towards passing ²the American Dream and Promise Act. Failure ⁵to expound on ²the process that was followed to expound on the due process in passing the act creates a gap to challenge the authenticity of the thesis statement. As a result, any scholar has the chance to critic the thesis statement as it has not addressed the issue of passing ⁵the American Dream and Promise Act comprehensively. Nevertheless, ²it is important to appreciate ⁵the path the thesis has taken as it will enable so many Americans to engage one another and discuss whether passing of the bill was important or not. At the end of the day, those supporting and those against passing ²of the American Dream and Promise Act will ⁵be on one path towards building a strong America which is a concern for all irrespective they are native Americans of not.

Question 4

A thesis statement indeed has two parts, namely the topic and the comment. The American Dream and Promise Act bringing more harm than good is the topic part of the thesis statement. This enables the reader to expound on the benefits the nation at large will enjoy as a result of passing the act. On the other hand, the same brings into light the consequences that all Americans will have to deal with as a result of passing of the act. Thus, in this case, the topic part of the act forms a critical part of the research paper as once the reader has gone through it will be able to know whether the ¹American Dream and Promise Act is necessary to ⁵the united states or not. Having understood its importance will give people a go-ahead to either support or critic the act having clear and sounds reasons towards the same. On the other hand, the thesis statement has the comment part of it which is; 'Passing of ¹the American Dream and Promise Act (HR 6) is ¹one of the most notable acts that the united states house of representatives have passed in 2019. This has created a path to millions of immigrants who want to acquire American citizenship.' This does not either support or oppose the act but only highlights that ¹the American Dream and Promise Act is ¹one of the important acts that were passed in 2019 hence making the statement to be neutral in terms of either supporting or opposing the same.

Question 5

The topic about American Dream and Promise Act interests me in several ways. First, it enables me to understand and research more on the process that was followed by the House of Representatives in passing the act. After understanding the process gives me a strong foundation to either support or criticize the passing of the act. Secondly, the topic interests me as it enables me to comprehend the merits of ¹passing the American Dream and Promise Act. This enhances me to understand whether indeed America as a nation requires the act or it's just as waste of time and resources where else there are other pinching issues that the house of representatives can discuss and pass. Hence, being able to reason critically before raising any issues about the act since am already informed on what I may want to say regarding the same. On the other hand, the topic becomes more interesting in understanding the demerits of the act and whether they will haunt the Americans for short term or long term.

Question 6

The thesis statement is specific and manageable as it only weighs between the harm and good of the American Dream and Promise Act. Looking at the two aspects becomes reasonable and manageable and hence the mission is accomplishable. On the contrary, it could have been not manageable if it went to look at the process that was followed to pass the act as the process is a long one and very detailed. This may lead to wasting a lot of time and having a lot of content which in my own opinion is not manageable. However, dealing with only the merits and demerits of passing of the American Dream and Promise Act helps to come up with informative content that can be relied on by any scholar out there. On the other hand, the thesis is manageable since am only discussing a single act passed on that particular day and not several acts passed by then. Such an aspect helps the reader to understand fully the American Dream and Promise Act and avoid any confusion that may come in in terms of the process followed, merits and demerits of the same. Again, the thesis is specific on criticizing the passing of the American Dream and Promise Act hence enabling the reader to understand whether indeed the act was necessary or not. As a result, my research will be informative in terms of expounding the act by approaching it in the right way without having so much to cover within a short research work.

One of the difficulties I may encounter in researching my thesis is the right terminologies are supposed to use in getting the right information. As it is obvious that there are keywords that one is supposed to use when searching for specific information from various websites. Thus, it becomes one of the main difficulties encountered when researching such an important aspect regarding American life. Secondly, some of the sites that contain information concerning government act one have to log in to obtain information for security purposes. Thus, it may become a challenge as this would make me waste a lot of time on unnecessary matters instead of concentrating on the key issues. Again, authenticity of information from some sites may be questionable and this may lead to getting the wrong or exaggerated information. For that reason, am supposed to be cautious in terms of the sites I am supposed to access in getting reliable and actual information. Failure to be keen on the sites I will use may raise a lot of questions about the reliability of my research paper since it will not be supported by facts thus may lead to low scores. Last but not least difficulty I may encounter in researching my thesis is time factor. Time is limited and such an issue requires ample time to be persistent in line of thinking and how one gives out the information. Thus, I will have to commit a lot of time in expounding the thesis statement to come up with a good paper altogether.

Question 8

My thesis statement will inform the reader about the demerits and merits of ¹ passing the American Dream and Promise Act in a decisive and informative way. Since most of the readers already know about the act informing them on a comprehensive and informative level will help them understand what the act entails in a better way. Again, elaborating my thesis statement by backing it with reliable sources that the readers can afterward visit and evaluate will build confidence in my work. This will, in turn, help them to connect with my line of thinking and hence communicating my message will be an easier task. Besides, the thesis statement will remain specific on the merits and demerits of passing the American Dream and Promise Act hence avoiding any confusion towards conveying the information to the reader. It is evident that most of the time writers fail to be specific towards the information they are conveying and in the process, they end up losing their readers along the way. For that reason, being decisive, specific and use of reliable resources will help the reader to comprehend what they already know about ⁴ the passing of the American Dream and Promise Act ⁷ on June 4, 2019, by the House of Representatives. This comes out as a lesson to every scholar out there on the need to remain focused in their line of thinking since some of the readers already know and understand better what they are talking about an aspect that helps to reduce criticism from the reader.
