Hello, class. And welcome to week two. You may have noticed, as you work through your MBA courses, that periodically you work on discussion questions dealing with your own career development. This is purposeful, as we want to study individual business topics in the courses. However, we also want you to be thinking about your own career.

Starting in the Leadership and Teamwork BUS 621 course, you worked on a CliftonStrengths exercise. You did more with Strength Finder in the Human Capital Management Using Applied Psychology course. In previous classes, you also worked on personal branding and networking. This week, we continue developing awareness of career development by researching how other people have utilized their MBA degrees, and becoming more familiar with LinkedIn.

This is a great opportunity for you to reflect upon your own career path.
