

The main discussion post's content is good. Ethical planning and behavior with respect to research is absolutely paramount!

Narrative citations should still have parentheses around the date (-1)

The peer-responses look okay.

The main discussion post's content looks fine. Pseudosciences are amusing and sometimes intriguing, but they simply don't hold up under scientific scrutiny.

The in-text citations are not quite in APA format (-2): In narrative citations the date should still be parenthetical; when there are more than one author all authors must be reflected in the citation through the use of both authors' names if there are two and by the use of "et al." if there are three or more.

The references are formatted well!

The peer-responses look fine.
