

8. Think about the cash flows associated with putting $100,000 in the bank for five years, assuming you draw out the interest each year and then close the account.

Now think about a set of hypothetical cash flows associated with putting the same money in a business, operating for five years, and then selling out. Write an explanation of why the IRR on the business project is like the bank's interest rate. How are the investments different?