It was amazing to see the impact the Funk Brothers had, to the point some were saying that there would be no Motown records without them. The scene with Jamerson in the back of the car when he asked them to pull over so he could put his pajamas on and then later started to eat pig feet. Motown really helped soul music, and soul music helping people was cool to see how music can have such an impact on people's lives. The fact that Eddie Willis has to build his own first guitar with a broom wire, it's sad but it's amazing to see that he made it work.
