The title of this poster should be a complete thought

Virginia Commonwealth University– BIOZ 15X

Introduction

-Should be similar in tone and type of content as the introduction to your lab report.
-Briefly, but logically get viewer to your question and hypothesis
-Can be in paragraph OR bullet point form, but always complete sentences.
-Should include in-text citations (Author(s) Year).
-Use all 3 of your primary sources in this section to develop your ideas
-Be concise and proofread!

DO NOT MAKE THIS FONT SIZE SMALLER FOR ANY OF THESE SECTIONS, ONLY LARGER IF NEEDED!

Research Objective

Put your research objective here. It can be one or a few sentences. If you have several objectives/questions it may be a good idea to use a bulleted list. Either way, make sure you use complete sentences.

Hypothesis

State your hypothesis here. Make sure that it is written as a complete sentence(s). It should follow logically from the background information given in the introduction.

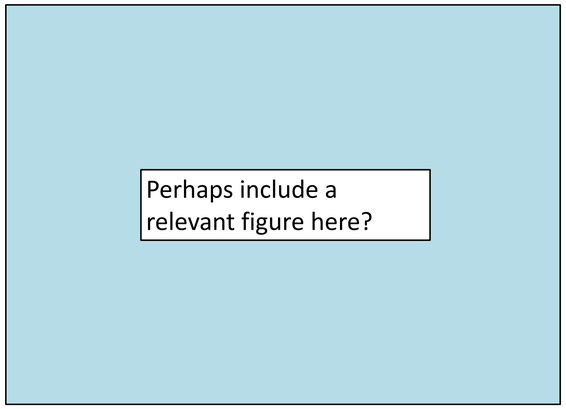

Figure 1. The title of the above figure goes here as well necessary information to interpret this figure. – Same as below.

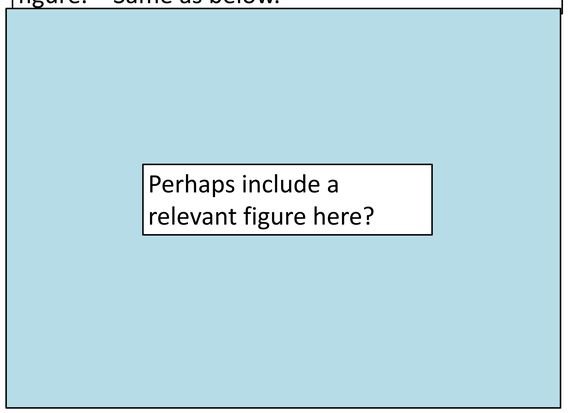

Figure 2. The title of the above figure goes here.

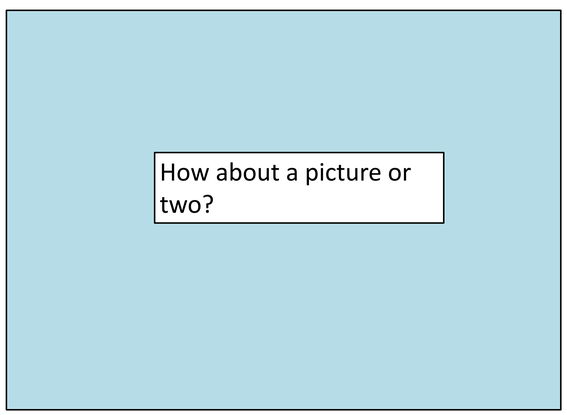

Figure 3. The title of the above figure goes here.

Methods

Do not include overly specific details. Do not list materials and do not list any “steps.” This section can be in paragraph form or bullet points, but always complete sentences.

Results and Discussion

Present your results here. This section can be in paragraph form or bullet points, but always complete sentences.

The results should follow logically from your presented introduction, objective, and hypothesis. Refer to Figures by their number.

Discuss implications of results.

References

Last Name, First Initial., and Last Name, First Initial., 2013. The title of the article goes here. Journal name goes here. 4(1): 145-160.
Last Name, First Initial., and Last Name, First Initial., 2013. The title of the article goes here. Journal name goes here. 4(1): 145-160.
Last Name, First Initial., and Last Name, First Initial., 2013. The title of the article goes here. Journal name goes here. 4(1): 145-160.