I love these crash course videos, they remind me of high school! There are a number of things that I found interesting, they are as follows:

- I was astonished when he mentioned that the first permanent English colony in America was named after Queen Elizabeth's chastity.
- The disappearance of all the colonists from Roanoke. How did all of this people simply just disappear? Were there any remains-whether it be goods, personal belonging, or bodies left?
- I never knew that if a woman were to become a widow that their status allowed them to make contracts and own property. I had always assumed that their rights simply didn't change before or after marriage.
- I never knew the exact way Thanksgiving began so I was amazed to learn the reason behind it. The story of how the Indians led by Squanto helped to save the Pilgrims by teaching them lifestyle skills to survive, helps me better understand how Pilgrims and Indians are associated with each other and the holiday.
- I also found it interesting that in order to vote or had office you had to be a church member; to be a church member you had to be a "visible saint". Although they wanted to make it seem equal, they still made it so higher ups had the power.
