

Research topic: Historical Method, Schwartz, Stuart B. and Tatiana Seijas. Victors and Vanquished: Spanish and Nahua Views of the Fall of the Mexica Empire

Citation Style: APA

This assignment consists of a list of 7 annotated citations, as follows:

- One reference source- from a database such as Gale Virtual Reference Library, or print reference on the 1st floor.
- Two books- one ebook, and one print book from the stacks on the 3rd floor.
- Two scholarly journal articles- at least one article has to be from a subscription database such as Academic Source Complete. The other may be from an open access source (such as the Directory of Open Access Journals [<https://doaj.org>]) or subscription database.
- Two internet sources- one article must be from an online periodical that is (or was) also available in print form (such as the New York Times [using "site:.nytimes.com"]) and one document from a website exclusively online (such as from a .edu or .gov site)

Your annotated bibliography is a list of 7 sources that you could use in an essay in support of your argument or research question. (This does not mean they all share your point of view. You may use opposing viewpoints and critique them in an essay!)

Each entry must have the full correct citation format for the item.

Each entry must have an annotation. An annotation of the source is 1-2 paragraphs describing what the item is about and why you selected it, i.e. how it addresses your research question.

Reference articles are brief and you should be able to read them entirely, which is also useful to gain a good grasp of your topic. However, you are not expected to completely read the books you select. Rather, you should skim them, especially the Table of Contents and the Introduction.

For the 2 internet sites please add how you determined that they were credible. The issue of credibility is not as much in question for reference sources, books, or journal articles retrieved from the Library, or online versions of credible newspapers and magazines (periodicals). However, what strengthens your annotation (and your future research papers) is to indicate what specifically gives the author(s) authority on your subject beyond the fact that they are published in a credible source.
