Then Everything Changed Part II

1. How does Bobby Kennedy's life get saved, and by whom?

After winning California Primary, Bobby encounters a gunman called Sirhan Sirhan, who tries to shoot him. In this scene, Steve Smith, Kennedy's brother-in-law, did everything possible to protect him. When the gunman ran towards Bobby Kennedy, Smith also threw himself and knocked this man to the floor immediately after firing a shot. Unfortunately, Smith's shoulder was grazed by this bullet that was shot from a revolver. The other people who helped to save Kennedy's life were Rafer Johnson and Roosevelt Grier, who pinned this man against the wall as a way of immobilizing his hand.

2. Who Wins the nominations?

After a contested nomination, Senator Robert Kennedy won the Democratic Party Presidential Nomination. Humphrey resolved to support Robert Kennedy regardless of their prior political differences. This is witnessed when Humphrey introduces Robert Kennedy as the next President of the United States.

3. How did that nomination change Nixon's campaign strategy?

The nomination of Bobby Kennedy greatly changed Nixon's campaign strategy. For instance, Nixon resolved to have a stronger running mate with equal vigor, just like Kennedy. Nixon also portrayed himself as a person who acknowledges American troubles. Nixon's campaign also strategized on how to utilize the money to persuade Americans to vote for him. He used a lot of money to appease voters, unlike Kennedy and Wallace.

4. How does the President void the problems that the real President Richard Nixon faced?

The President avoids the real problems that the real President Richard Nixon faced. In reality, President Nixon encountered a serious economic crisis during his tenure. Nixon's presidency encountered series of stagflation. Nixon imposed ineffective policies that reduced the value of the dollar. The President, Bobby Kennedy, avoided these problems by injecting money into the economy in order to improve infrastructure and other aspects of production. This President availed necessary resources that people can use to enhance economic growth and development.

5. What does the piece say about the temptation of power?

Based on the temptation of power, it is apparent that power can make leaders make poor decisions that can destroy humanity. For instance, power can lead to war. Leaders who feel more powerful can end up starting or promoting war. Power also enabled RFK to end the Vietnam War based on his negotiation skills. It is also clear that the temptation of power can enable leaders to terminate most planet's life. It is also crucial to note that the President has powers to direct events. For instance, the President had the power to alter Vietnam policy, escalate the war, rally the country, or even stop the bombing.
