

Project: Simulation of Core TCP functionality using UDP Sockets

You need to develop a project that implements the main functionality of TCP (in contrast to UDP), namely, order-preserving lossless delivery, test it with synthetic test cases that simulate rare scenarios such as losing packets, and present the results in a well written project report. You may use any high-level language such as Java, Python, C++, MATLAB, etc.