

The description can be drawn from the lectures, readings, videos, books, journals, or websites. It should be about 50-70 words in sentence form for each archeological site

Description

provide information on these four criteria

- The country and nearest city of location.
- Principal components of local physiography (e.g., desert, forest, grasslands, tropics, near this ocean, on this river, in these mountains or valley).
- Dates or period name when the site was at its height (not when it was discovered by an archaeologist).
- Affiliated archaeological culture group or significance.

Below each description add in the source(s) of information for those facts and the image, naming the title of the article, author, and year published. In the “Link” box below the description panel, copy and paste the article URL(s) to hyperlink the site title to the article.

•Be careful not to simply cut-and-paste information from other sources—that is plagiarism and is a breach of the Student Conduct Code. You must summarize information from sources in your own words.
