Nice job, Abdullah.

You've got the general idea of the poem but could strengthen your work with a bit more development or analysis!

Summary Homework 3

In "Mending Wall" by Robert Frost, Frost talked about his story with his neighbor, and Frost told ^{us} ~~as~~ that he didn't like that wall that separates ~~between~~ him and his neighbor.

There are some days he and his neighbor meet next to the wall and fix the wall if it is broken.

The speaker in the poem

Frost think that ^{it} isn't important to keep the wall and he ^{doesn't} ~~don't~~ want it because he just has apple trees and his neighbor has pine trees and they don't have cows or something that can walk. ~~In~~

^{no} contrast, unfortunately, his neighbor wants to keep the wall because he thinks that it will make them good neighbors. Frost tried many times to convince his neighbor, but it does not help and his neighbor still wants the wall.

what causes the walls to break? is this a metaphor for something else why does he think this?
