

ANTH 322: Archaeology of North America • Exam #1, Short-essay Question • December 22, 2018

The following is your short-essay question for the first ANTH 322 exam. Your response will be worth up to a maximum of 20 points out of a potential 100 for exam #1:

- According to Fagan and your course lectures, there are three primary methods by which the founding populations of the New World may have entered the Western Hemisphere. What are those three proposed methods? What are the major strengths and weaknesses of each method? Make a case for one or more or those methods, based on the textbook readings, online lectures, and any reputable outside materials that you care to include in support of your answer.

You will have one week to write your answer. I am looking for a short-essay response – two to three typed pages. You must submit your answer to me by noon on Thursday, February 7 (the start time of your online multiple-choice exam). Please email it to me as a Word doc or PDF at dhoefer@twc.com. If you use any outside (non-textbook, non-classroom) academic sources, please note them at the end of your answer. Remember: correct spelling and proper grammar will work in your favor!
