

Moral Judgments Related to Immigration:

From Me to Everyone: (9:28 AM)

feeling like you're somewhere you shouldn't be

From Shmuel Dickel to Everyone: (9:28 AM)

if someone is a good or bad immigrant

From ADRIAN. Singh to Everyone: (9:28 AM) being willing to accept moral criticism and continue to pursue the life you came to pursue

From Sarah Akhtar to Everyone: (9:29 AM)

Feeling you are not good enough

From Yingxin Zhou to Everyone: (9:30 AM) saying that you are here to take the benefit of others(increase competition)

From Shmuel Dickel to Everyone: (9:30 AM)

Saying someone is just or unjust in their actions or reactions

From Jennifer Castillo to Everyone: (9:30 AM)

being called lazy because people think you are just here to freeload

From victoria young to Everyone: (9:30 AM) feeling like you're not deserving of a certain life in a certain place bc of the arrogance of others

From Marilyn Mejia Alvarenga to Everyone: (9:30 AM)

Saying that someone is a criminal

From Armando Gomez to Everyone: (9:31 AM)

if you're deserving of staying

From Kathy Zamora to Everyone: (9:31 AM) feeling like it was a wrong to come in the first place

From Shmuel Dickel to Everyone: (9:31 AM)

saying if someones response to something that happened such as using violence is right or wrong

From Mohamed Bazali to Everyone: (9:31 AM) feeling like youre leeching off of the people that "deserve" things because they were born here

Moral Luck:

Step 1- A moral judgment- that's true.

Step 2-The judgment is taken in isolation and does not reflect the person as a whole.

Step 3- We explain the bigger picture and the circumstances surrounding what happened/judgment.

Step 4- Moral luck enters and we see what's beyond the person's control.

Moral Luck involves a moral judgment that's true but isolated and when we see the bigger picture what is out of the persons control our MORAL JUDGMENT CHANGES.