

Wizard of OZ – Nursing Diagnosis

Name

Institution

Date

Wizard of OZ – Nursing Diagnosis

CHARACTER	ASSESSMENT DATA	NURSING DIAGNOSIS	PLANNING	IMPLEMENTATION INTERVENTIONS	EVALUATION
The Tin Man	Has Immobile joints, Pale skin, Weak joints States that he does not have a heart, the character asserts that they rusted over time while cutting trees with an ax.	Increased rain while cutting off trees created high chances of rusting over. Thus, the patient became immobile. He has no heart and shows symptoms of arthritis in addition to permanent contracting as evident by pale skin and difficulty in joint movements.	The patient's range of motion can be suitably estimated through physical therapy. However, the patient goals entails to have a heart as well as stop rusting over. The goal is not realistic but he can keep on oiling the joints for increased mobility.	The above plans can be unfolded by applying oil to the patient on a daily basis. There is need to consult experienced physical therapists to liaise with the patient for mobility.	The goal will be met when the patient is not rusting over with frequent contractions, reduced joint pain and improved mobility.
The Scarecrow	Jaundice with uneven facial tones, no hair, has no control over joints, frequently questions over everything, asserts that he does not have brain.	He is not human since he is made from straw, so has no brain and shows vital signs of confusion, no joint control. Highly immobile and distressed.	The range of motion physical therapy for tremors, bearing brain is not realistic and can be educated for improved awareness.	The increased range of motion would aid in managing tremors, as well as talking to experienced therapist who could help the patient to cope with not being human, enlighten the patient on the anatomy.	The primary goals will be accomplished when tremors are in great control and the patient has a thorough understanding to the fact that he is not human.

The Lion	Has brown even skin tone, regular joint movement, croaky voice, depicts vital signs of anxiety, has a lot of hair, mobility is enhanced, and does not entertain hypertrichosis.	Has disturbed body image with low self-esteem which causes lack of confidence, increased social anxiety, shyness, and panic disorder.	Counseling for improved body image, medication for anxiety.	Talk to physician for anti-anxiety medication order and liaise with physicians for improved self-image based on courage.	The goal will be accomplished when the patient exhibits vital signs of improve confidence and esteem and stands a chance to function without excessive shyness and based on esteem.
Wicked Witch of the West	Has a volatile solid green skin tone with curved fingers indicative or arthritis, tense, raspy loud angry voice, dry cracked hair and highly relies on broom for motility.	The craving for power of all lands leads to the development of challenging mental health issues. The patient exhibits impulse explosive disorder with recurrent aggressive outbursts and explosive ranges.	Offer improved anger management tutorial services to cater for explosive outbursts and medication for mental health issues	Consult a physician for accurate prescription of mental health medications as well as establish anger management classes with the patients.	The primary goal will be met when all anger fits are accurately managed and the idea of having power of all kingdoms is suppressed