Dear Mr. Lovett:

I am writing this letter in favors of the film "Dead End", specifically concerning its character of the role of a rich middle-aged man with respected friends and loving neighbors, successful, full of imaginations and loving husband and father with a scrambled life at the end. This is because I think I know exactly who can be able to fill the gaps in the film. The man's name is Neddy

Merill with precious life and imaginative man with the love for his wife and four daughters. I am convinced with him because I witnessed the turn of the event about his life and listened to his narration of good events of his life, I believe that Neddy Merrill would impeccably appropriate for the role that you need in your film. be

Neddy Merrill is a middle-aged man and full of life at the beginning of his life. His love for his family is unconditional, especially for his wife. He would do anything in respect for his wife

Lucinda. Through his life, his wife and the four daughters have been his life. As he narrates he says that he would construct a big "swimming pool" and name it after his wife "Lucinda River".

This shows the extent that Neddy would go because of his love for his wife. He loves the kind of life that he has given his four daughters because of the kind of life that they live. As he narrates, every homestead from where they live they have a swimming pool ^{IN} and that gives him joy because his family loves the life. As it is always every man's joy and happiness to keep his family at the peak of life, Neddy had just that since he could afford the best drinks that he would share with his neighbors. Neddy's house stood at the right place "Bullet Park" where his four beautiful daughters would have the best place for lunch and a ground to "play tennis".

Neddy's life is surrounded with good friends and prosperous. All the Neddy's friends are prosperous and respect him. This is something that brings more comfort to Neddy's life. He and his wife can manage to visit their friends and have drinks. To him, his friends and the happy life that they live contributes a lot to his successful life. However, his life with his friends and neighbors was not that interesting. The love that his neighbor gave to him was never reciprocated. He would choose what to do without considering the feelings of his neighbor. To some moments he can even turn down some of the invitations from the neighbors. For instance, Neddy always snubbed Grace Biswanger's invitation for dinner. Neddy would do this without considering that he was hurting his neighbor.

Out of his success as a middle-aged man with enough to sustain his family and himself, Neddy saw himself as the hero of his own way. Because of that, every step of life that he took was for his own satisfaction. Compared to his neighbors he was satisfied that he had all that he needed for life. This made him different from the other neighbors and friends. However, he was not aware of the going time that was shedding off his life. And before he realized his life was on another take of the situation.

→ What does this mean?
During his imagination of life and the kind of swimming river, he can construct. He realizes that the time in which he lived whereby his friends were happy to see him was fading. Things were not the same and at a speed of time, he sees himself getting tired and old. Neddy imagines of swimming through the neighbors' backyard to his home. This is something that is not real but to him, it is real because he imagines that he has constructed the "Lucinda River". Due to his good and comfortable life more than that of his neighbors, Neddy is convinced that he has the capacity that can change the view of his neighborhood. He can be able to manage and construct the perfect thing that he wishes for. In his life nothing was impossible and he could do the impossible with his current life in the suburb.
What is the importance of this?

Neddy ~~narration~~ shows that his world begun to shut upon arriving at his home from his swimming through the backyard of his neighborhood. The love of his life and the only family that lived for had left. The house is empty, his wife Lucinda had left with the four daughters living him alone. The scramble of his is taking toll of his breath and he is getting old. He has nothing anymore. He cannot manage to make to any party in his neighborhood. Everything has changed and his financial problem is changing the course of everything. He stops to different neighbors to ask for drinks but they do not accept him anymore. Shirley Adams who was once good friends with Neddy Merrill refuses to offer him a drink. → What does this mean?

Neddy cannot imagine that Shirley thinks that he is not grown up yet despite the good relationship that they had. This was the same with most of his neighbors as some of them mocked his situation. Mrs. Halloran and her husband invite Neddy for a swim in their pool. But this is not the case; the Halloran family just invited him to make fun of his condition. Mrs.

Halloran mocks Neddy by talking about his misfortunes. Things had turned unlike Neddy had expected, he had nothing anymore. No money, no family and respect. However, not all was lost for Neddy Merrill because despite his current situation he still had some of the neighbors who cared about him. Those who would still give him drinks and care about were still around him. for him it was a shock that he would still have people to care and invite him for drinks like Enid Bunker.
