

What was it about the Stamp Act specifically and the way the colonists responded to it that paved the way for the American Revolution? What was so empowering about those events?