Policy Project Check-In

When I started working on this assignment, it was both educational and challenging. It was informative because I got to learn about crime, why it took place, and how to create policies that will help curb it. Challenging because sometimes I found a lot of information on the internet, making it hard to narrow down the information I want. While evaluating the Crime and Public Policy book (Wilson & Petersilia, 2011), I encountered a challenge of synthesizing some of the criminal justice terminologies in the book and how they relate to juvenile crime.

Similarly, I faced a challenge of lack of enough content that comes to generating policies that involve juvenile crimes. Most of the policies available were for adult crimes only. Another challenge was getting distracted if I could not find the information I was looking for, which resulted in writer's block. The most difficult challenge that came in was with the question. It was a bit challenging to get the concept at first and what I was supposed to do before starting the project. Consequently, regarding the process of creating a policy, the steps provided on the internet were too many because of the changes that had been made to them. Some websites stated that there are five steps, and others presented more than making it a bit challenging to settle on the right process. Concerning my searching techniques, the change I would make is to use the topic of my assignment to search for the content I need. The next technique I would use is using a Boolean operator to get the exact information I need.
