

Anatomy & Physiology

What body system allows the client to feel sensation during the micro-dermabrasion treatment?

What effect does the micro-dermabrasion treatment have on the epidermis, and dermis

Complete the following table:

Gland	What are they?	Where are they located and what do they secrete?	How do they affect the skin?
Sweat glands		.
Sebaceous glands			Refer to the roll in transepidermal water loss (TEWL)

What changes would you expect to see on the skin for an individual going through puberty including skin type? Why would this occur?

Anatomy & Physiology

What changes would you expect to see on the skin for an individual going through menopause including skin type? Why would this occur?

What is the difference between aged skin and prematurely aged skin in regards to appearance and anatomical differences (compare this to a normal skin)?

Research and outline information in regards to the following body systems and their relationship to skin functions and influences:

What occurs during trauma to the skin in regards to wound healing: outline the stages and how is collagen deposition affected?