Assessment Task 2: Project

Instructions

This assessment task requires you to conduct independent research on various forms of hair removal and hair disorders and then summarise your research in a word-processed document. You will have access to the following documentation to assist during this task:

- Student Salon Policies and Procedures
- Safety Data Sheets (SDS)
- Equipment manuals
- Student Learner Guide

This Assessment Task is in four (4) parts:

Part A) Hair Removal Methods

You are required to research the following hair removal methods:

- Electrolysis
- IPL/Laser Hair Removal

For each removal method mentioned above, you should identify:

- The procedure (what is involved, how does it work)
- The frequency of treatments
- The advantages and disadvantages compared to waxing treatments

Part B) Effects & Application of Hair Removal Methods

You are required to research the following hair removal methods:

- Sugaring
- Body hair clipping
- Tweezing
- Shaving

For each method mentioned above, you should identify:

- What is involved
- Advantages and disadvantages

Part C) Methods That Assist in the Waxing Treatment

You are required to research the following hair removal methods that are used in combination with waxing treatments:

- Infrared
- Hair retardants

For each method above, you should identify:

- What is involved
- How it can assist the effects of the waxing treatment?

Part D) Contraindications

You are required to consider when you would refer a client to a medical practitioner. You are required to explain why each of the following disorders would be contraindicated to a waxing treatment or may require medical clearance:

- Acne
- Contagious skin disorders
- Clients prone to keloids
- Sunburn
- Pigmented skin lesions
- Thin and fragile skin
- Recent scar tissue

- Varicose veins
- Skin trauma

Context of assessment

- This assessment task may be completed unsupervised in a classroom or independent learning environment.
- This assessment must be submitted online in the Learning Management System, unless reasonable adjustments are approved by the Head of Education.

Decision-making rules

To achieve a satisfactory result, you must:

- Submit a word-processed document which addresses and answers all tasks and activities to an acceptable industry standard.
