Audience Analysis Questions

Understanding my audience is crucial in helping me prepare for my speech. Furthermore, it helps me identify some of the pertinent information that I can use in creating a middle ground between me and my audience. In this regard, I will ask my classmates these six questions:

1. What do you expect at the end of the presentation? At the end of my speech, I will know what the audience expects from me and frame my speech to address their expectations.
2. What do you value? These questions help me align my speech to the deeply-held values among my audience.
3. How is the topic relevant to you? If they find my topic interesting, I will probably take little time explaining some of the details in my speech.
4. What are your age differences? This question helps me identify the age group that is my audience. Also, I will be in a position to better address each sub-group differently during my presentation.
5. What are some of the misconceptions you may have regarding my topic? My speech cannot meet its desired objective if these misconceptions are not fully addressed.
6. How much do you already understand about my speech? Their answer will help me determine where to start, concentrate on the basics, advance content, or start in the middle.
