From beginning to end, Mrs. Doubtfire gives a great many laughs, and almost all because of Robin Williams. A portion of the most entertaining scenes is amongst Williams and Harvey Fierstein as they choose Mrs. Doubtfire's look. In the wake of being made up like Barbra Streisand, Williams says to Fierstein, "It's not working. I have to go more seasoned." Fierstein reacts in his ceaselessly dry voice, "More established? You mean like a Shelly Winters more established, or Shirley MacLaine more seasoned?" (citation)

Mrs. Doubtfire additionally gives some strong ardent minutes. This is a film about separation and no, it isn't about the guardians getting back together (Robin ~~et.al~~, 2002). The finish of the film has a scene of Mrs. Doubtfire clarifying that families have a wide range of cosmetics.
