Ethics Response

I concur that the study of ethics despite not guaranteeing ethical conduct helps people to sort some form of code conduct. In this regard, the expected norms of behavior in the society are outlined and people are defined as an individual according to who they are in society. In turn, it helps us to make the right decisions in life which is true according to me also. People are not only being able to relate well with one another but also start and control businesses on their own. For that reason, it becomes clear that people would not relate well with one another if one does not do what they think is right and acceptable. Thanks to the study of ethics. Hence, agree that the study of ethics is paramount even if it sometimes interferes with how we make our decisions in both personal and business lives. Last but not least, it is true that with ethics all of us can evaluate the decisions we make and in turn influence our choices and actions. To sum up, the study of ethics contributes to our lives in one way or another and hence should not be taken for granted.
