Mission of Rainbow religion movement

In its most basic level of understanding, the Rainbow religion movement is both the statement of our belief and a summary message of our beliefs. As a matter of fact, , the Rainbow religion movement philosophy is “ a statement of the fundamental beliefs of the belief ”. It comes from the language philosophy, which means, “I think”. For Rainbow religion movement philosophy is only that the means for us to not just summarize our opinions, but to also share it with all who can hear.

Ninian Smart's 7 dimensions

The look at Ninian smart's dimensions of belief demonstrates that they basically correspond to the dimensions of social life as a summary. The question is so, what does the spiritual expression of these dimensions (belief, practices, emotions, artistic expression) distinct from others? Writers like Otto and Tillich have asserted that, though this organization view of belief is essential, it is the break-through of this specific subject, that “numinous” or the “unconditioned” that gives them new life again and again, by challenging them and reviving them simultaneously (this idea of deliverance) (Paloutzian, 2016).

Much content is conveyed and expressed not just by ritual but also by religious narrative or story. That is the third concept this mythic or narrative. It is this narrative line of religion the concept may also be seen clearly in the example of capitalism. There are common myths, e.g., this mind that it makes more money to be happy, the story of this ‘American dream ’, and the story of the invisible hand of the market. Each of these may remain existing within the concept of capitalism.

There are numerous ways to determine faith and what it thinks to you. To determine religion, a person named Ninian Smart travelled in the globe studying many other religions.

Whilst doing that, he made the seven dimensions of faith. These seven dimensions of faith are made up of the general characteristics of all faiths (Barry, 2017).
