Jennifer Lopez

Jennifer Lopez is an American singer, born in July 1969 in New York. She is a significant figure in Hollywood being a singer. She is also a mother of two and takes care of the family, implying she has a hectic life. Despite that, Lopez is unique in the industry for several reasons. In the 2000s, she founded the Nuyorican Productions, which has made many movies and television shows (Singh, 2020). The company oversaw her 2018 film named Second Act and shall also produce the 'Bye Bye Birdie.' She has also been a backup dancer in 'In Living Color,' boy band New Kids, which won in the 1991 awards. Besides, she was also a dancer for Janet Jackson, who offered her a tour, but she rejected, claiming to have personal responsibilities.

Since 2002, Lopez has released over twenty fragrances which are loved by many people. In 2019, she released the perfume type that has Italian tangerine and nashi pear. The singer is also unique because her career is based on her background. The first album was introduced in 1999, where she used the six trains to move from the Bronx to Manhattan, which became the title of the album (Singh, 2020). It is a unique thing because it shows her love for the hometown and appreciates it for making the celebrity she is today. Apart from that, she loves reality shows, whereby she claimed to love 'mob wives' the most in an interview with Vanity Fair. She has also been a judge in a number of them, including the American Idol. It is a unique thing because, being famous, it is expected that she would avoid the public. In 2009 the singer and the sister introduced a non-profit organization to help the needy.

Therefore, Jennifer Lopez is unique because she has explored many fields in the entertainment industry. Besides, she is also involved in other areas like business and helping the needy. She is, therefore, an all-around American singer, having significant impacts on society.
